General Election

Amends Constitution: Parent may select any public school statewide; district must admit, space permitting. Limited admission priorities

Result of “Yes” Vote: Parent may select any public/charter school statewide; district must admit student, space permitting. Priority for residents, returning students; no other preferences allowed. Admissions lottery.

Result of “No” Vote: “No” vote retains current law. No constitutional right to select among public schools. Schools may prioritize admission for sibling preference, academics, at-risk status, other criteria.

Summary: Amends constitution. Currently, parents may transfer children between K-12 public schools, when permitted by district. Schools may prioritize admission for sibling preference, academics, at-risk status, other criteria. Measure gives parents right to select any public/charter school statewide. District must admit student, space permitting. Priority given first to resident of attendance zone (assigned area where resident child attends specific school); second to district resident; third to outside district. No other preference allowed. When space limited, school uses lottery for each priority level. Returning students need not reapply. Admission open throughout school year. District not required to transport child outside assigned attendance zone. Districts lose funding for each departing student, gain funding for each incoming student. State adopts uniform application for enrollment. Applies starting July 2025.
